Patrick H. Butler

Patrick H. Butler is an attorney who focuses his practice on trust and estate planning, probate, trust administration, business law, and taxation issues.

Patrick's estate planning practice includes assisting families and individuals through practical and tax-efficient estate and gift planning. This includes the preparation of wills, health care directives, powers of attorney, revocable living trusts, and irrevocable trusts.

Prior to practicing at Larkin Hoffman, Patrick served as a legal research professional and an Adjunct Professor with a focus on tax law research at his alma mater, the University of Connecticut School of Law. Patrick also spent nearly a decade assisting the students and faculty as a librarian at Yale University.
